

Questions 1-4

Reading Passage 1 has eight paragraphs, A-H.

Which paragraph contains the following information?

Write the correct letter, A-H, in boxes 1-4 on your answer sheet.

- 1 a description of an early timekeeping invention affected by cold temperatures
- 2 an explanation of the importance of geography in the development of the calendar in farming communities
- 3 a description of the origins of the pendulum clock
- 4 details of the simultaneous efforts of different societies to calculate time using uniform hours

SECTION 1

You should spend about 20 minutes on Questions 1-13, which are based on Reading Passage 1 below.

Numeracy : can animals tell numbers ?

A Prime among basic numerical faculties is the ability to distinguish between a larger and a smaller number, says psychologist Elizabeth Brannon. Humans can do this with ease - providing the ratio is big enough - but do other animals share this ability? In one experiment, rhesus monkeys and university students examined two sets of geometrical objects that appeared briefly on a computer monitor. They had to decide which set contained more objects. Both groups performed successfully but, importantly, Brannon's team found that monkeys, like humans, make more errors when two sets of objects are close in number. The students' performance ends up looking just like a monkey's. It's practically identical, 'she says.

B Humans and monkeys are mammals, in the animal family known as primates. These are not the only animals whose numerical capacities rely on ratio, however. The same seems to apply to some amphibians. Psychologist Claudia Uller's team tempted salamanders with two sets of fruit flies held in clear tubes. In a series of trials, the researchers noted which tube the salamanders scampered towards, reasoning that if they had a capacity to recognise number, they would head for the larger number. The salamanders successfully discriminated between tubes containing 8 and 16 flies respectively, but not between 3 and 4, 4 and 6, or 8 and 12. So it seems that for the salamanders to discriminate between two numbers, the larger must be at least twice as big as the smaller. However, they could differentiate between 2 and 3 flies just as well as between 1 and 2 flies, suggesting they recognise small numbers in a different way from larger numbers.

IELTS Reading practice test based on question types While attempting the IELTS reading practice test, you need to be in a frame of mind of attempting the actual IELTS test. The IELTS Reading task involves three passages that gauge your analytical skills, reading comprehension, and the ability to effectively and efficiently read for the general idea, for the primary point of view, making the inferential analysis of the passages, writer's opinion, and inclination, etc. There are 40 questions in the IELTS Reading task, be it IELTS Academic or IELTS General, and these questions are stretched over a range of questions. Question Types in IELTS Reading It is best to begin by referring to an IELTS reading practice test with answers because you will get first-hand knowledge of how to arrive at the answers. But before you do that, learn the question types that are generally asked in the IELTS Reading tasks. This article covers most of the question types that are required to opt for the correct option from a list of options. You might have to choose between 4, 5 or more choices and give your response with the letter corresponding to which the right option (as per your choice) is mentioned like A, B, C, D, E depending upon how many options are available. Sentence Completion questions In these types of questions, you are required to complete an incomplete sentence following the word limit. You don't have to write the sentence on your own, nor do you need to paraphrase the information. You just have to find the sentence in which the question is a part and complete it as mentioned in the text. Complete the table type questions In these types of questions you are required to complete a table that is provided within the word limit. You just have to find the part from which the questions of the table are asked and then fill in the word that you feel is the most suitable to be written, and that would correctly complete the table. Short answer type questions In these types of questions, you need to provide a short answer to the questions asked. You don't have to provide the answer in detail. Just provide your answers in a short and crisp way within the word limit. The prerequisite for such types of questions is to understand the passage well, keeping the question(s) in mind. Label the diagram type of questions In the diagram labelling questions, you are required to complete the diagram with suitable words depending upon the situation. For this, you need to have a clear understanding of the context of the passage, and then, you need to fill in the spaces provided by using appropriate words upon having searched the paragraph(s) the question is taken from Matching type questions - Matching the sentence endings type questions In these types of questions, you are required to match the initial phrase of a sentence to the most appropriate ending of it. The first step should be to read the question and paraphrase the sentence. This way, it becomes easy to choose the right ending. Match the features type questions You need to match the most appropriate features of a column to a category in another column. It could be a peculiar characteristic given in the passage of a certain group or a feature of a device, etc. You have to follow the passage well to be able to attempt these types of questions. Match the heading type questions In this subset of matching questions, you are required to match the paragraphs given in a column to the appropriate heading mentioned in another column. For example, para A para B could have a heading Mahourishment. Essential nutrients, etc. So your task is to match the paragraphs with the apt titles. The task becomes easy if you understand the central idea of the passages. Complete the summary type questions In these types of questions, the context and the fair understanding of the passage are of utmost importance. Failing to do so would be very problematic for you to infer the passage and come to a conclusion. Comprehending the text well could help you attempt summarizing or completing the summary types of questions correctly. Ensure to write within the word limit. True/False/Not Given or Yes/No/Not Given You have to understand the writer's perspectives and give the answer suitably, keeping in mind the writer's viewpoints. To understand the writer's views, you have to, first of all, understand the writer's opinion and attitude well. Once you are able to gauge the intent and inclination of the writer, these questions become considerably easier.
