Algorithmic Trading Architecture

Algorithmic trading is a form of trading that uses computer programs to execute trades. It is based on mathematical models and algorithms that analyze market data and execute trades based on predefined rules. The architecture of an algorithmic trading system is complex and involves several key components:

- Data Sources: Hedge funds, investment banks, asset management firms, and insurance companies provide data to the system.
- Data Processing: Data is processed through a 'Data Sink' and 'Feed Handlers' to extract relevant information.
- Analysis: The system performs 'Trend, Pattern, Signal Analysis' on the data.
- Order Execution: The 'Order Routing / Management System (FIX, FAST etc)' manages the execution of orders.
- Execution Venues: Orders are executed through 'Dark Pools, Brokers, DMA etc'.
- Monitoring: A 'Quant/Development/Monitoring' block oversees the system's performance and makes adjustments as needed.

The architecture is designed to be highly scalable and efficient, allowing for the execution of large volumes of trades in a fraction of a second. It also provides a high level of transparency and control over the trading process.
